12th Annual Wine Festival Review

By Glenn Graves

Laurel Springs, NC – The iffy forecast for the first Saturday in October may have caused us to be more cautious than usual for our annual festival party, but the end result was anything but iffy! From the diverse assortment of craft-vendors to the delightful and entertaining music of Naomi's Fancy and on to the variety of tantalizing wines offered by our ever-growing winery, our 12th Annual Thistle Meadow Winery October Festival was a terrific event for the more than two hundred who attended. The general assessment by those who came to the Alleghany County Blue Ridge Mountains was that this was a fun-filled event.

Our great festival was enhanced by not only the superb vendors who readily displayed their wares, the talented and entertaining musicians who kept the rhythm of the afternoon flowing, but also by the food for sale – the hamburgers & hotdogs (along with all the trimmings) – offered up by the Wyatt Brothers of Mouth of Wilson, Virginia (assisted by Pam & Paul, the always willing parents). Tom Burgiss, our host and winery owner, gave away his usual assortment of terrific prizes: one to the couple who had traveled the longest distance, Robert & Stella Perkins of Abu Dhabi, U.A.E., and another prize was awarded to the oldest person attending, Bob Lasater. There were also drawings for the other outstanding prizes.

While we heartily believe in the success of our October event scheduled on a Saturday this year, we will return to the Sunday format in 2010 in an effort to avoid some of the scheduling conflicts we encountered. We appreciate all who came to our party and thank you for making this past year one of the best ever for the winery. We look forward to serving you this next year and hope you will join us next October for another great winery festival with live music, great vendors, and delicious wines all offered for your pleasure and entertainment. Please come join us again next October!

Wine Exercise: Pouring Concentrate

By Paul Kovacich

I know it sounds simple. Pouring juice or concentrate out of its double walled bag into your primary fermenter should be an easy and mess free step in the winemaking process, but I still know of folks who have trouble getting their concentrate out without incident, particularly with the heavier 16 and 18 liter bags. I myself have seen Tom draw blood simply trying to get the cap off the bag. So here's a pictorial demonstration of pouring concentrate with a few tips to help you get all the juice into the bucket!

1. Brace the concentrate box between your feet and grab two corners of the bag. Lift the bag using your legs and pulling up with your arms.

2. Place the bag on an elevated surface with the cap facing up. Have the cap of the bag located on the whichever side is your dominant hand/arm (for me, that's the right.) Now, with your non-dominant hand, grab the bag. With the other, use a waiter's corkscrew or similar bottle opening tool.

Hot Tip

Lower tannin

People always ask how to get rid of tannins in the wines they make at home with fresh grapes. You cannot get rid of them but you can make them lower by taking the seeds out of your crushed grapes before fermenting. Grape seeds are very high in tannins.

Help with Winemaking Hurdles

"The Stomper" gives us an opportunity to address important winemaking questions asked via the phone regarding home winemaker's potential problems. To some, this month's article could be redundant, so just bear with me.

The question? "If I go on a trip or I am called out of town unexpectedly what will happen to my wine?" Right off, I will make this statement! Wine is very forgiving but you should avoid doing anything earlier (in days) rather than late! So if your next step is due on a Saturday, do not perform the task on FRIDAY, just wait until MONDAY. Then you can adjust your other dates forward 2 days! Perhaps you skipped adding an ingredient i.e. Bentonite... mix it in hot water and go ahead and stir it in.... you'll be OK... If you have REAL doubts, just give us a call at 1-800-233-1505 and we can TAKE AWAY THE WORRY!

The grapestompers web site offers a wealth of information. Go to the left "slide bar" on our home page and select "Winemaking Information", where you'll see links to newsletters, tutorials, and articles and more to help you with all your wine making questions. Several great wine recipes (listed alphabetically) are available from Jack Keller's web site, which is linked from our "Links" page. Please feel free to call us with any questions on these topics or to add others that you feel need to be addressed.

We are pleased that so many of our customers subscribe to WineMaker Magazine and I am looking forward to meeting you face to face at the 2010 Winemaker Magazine Conference, scheduled for May 21-22 in Stevenson, WA. I have sent in my reservation as a sponsor; mark your calendar and make your reservation when registration begins. Hope to see you there!

Wine Kit News

Enzyme Packs Available, HB to Discontinue Kits

Brant Burgiss

Starting on August 19, 2009, Cellar Craft began including a special packet of enzymes in the boxes of all 18L Showcase Collection and 12L Sterling Collection kits (5-week kits) that come with a grape pack. Included in the kit is a note card with directions on how to use it, if you haven't used this product before.

The enzyme is called Vinoflow FCE. It is an age-old natural red winemaking enzyme that has a few purposes:

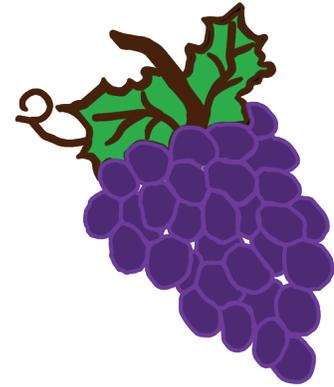

- Quicker secondary fermentation
- Faster clearing - could eliminate the need for extra kieselsohl packs
- Easier filtering - no plugging and can put more wines through a set of pads
- No sediment fall-out in the bottles. The sediment falls out in the carboy instead.
- Noted to improve the aromatics
- Note - This is not a chemical and doesn't strip the wine in any way, shape or form
- The enzyme is not as necessary for the home winemaker but they will benefit from the use of this product

We've just received a supply of the enzyme packs from Cellar Craft. If you would like us to send some extra enzyme packs for the kits that don't have them inside already, please let us know and we can send them to you.

Heron Bay recently announced that the following kits have been discontinued:

- 16L Viognier (SOLD OUT)
- 16L Australian Cabernet Sauvignon (SOLD OUT)
- 16L Chardonnay #HB130—ONLY 3 AVAILABLE

When these kits are sold out, no more will be available, so order now while we still have a few Chardonnay left. Heron Bay is still making the 8L version, and the 16L version of Australian Chardonnay is still being made too.

Customer Feedback

Thanks for your help Pam!
It has been a joy working with you!

Pam, thanks for getting back to me. I was out all day and couldn't contact you sooner. I see from a second email that the order has been shipped. Thanks for going ahead and sending it as we will just wait for it. We enjoy doing business with you and appreciate the way you operate. Thanks again,

Judy Brandon

Grapestompers Gang, as always thanks for your great customer service. I was hoping for a 300 bottle cellar. Now, if I'm under 2000 bottles it feels like I'm running out of wine. HA! With your monthly specials I can continue to add those wines we enjoy, share them with friends and family and save money.

Winemaking Definition

Wild Yeast:

Sometimes referred to as "natural yeast," wild yeast are the yeast fungi that are present naturally on grapes, on winery equipment, and just in the air itself. These yeast strains are far from uniform in population.

Don't Let the Bacteria In

In winemaking, cleanliness is a key factor. By adding a sulfite solution to the water in your airlock, you can prevent mold and bacteria from entering into your carboy or fermentation bucket. We suggest using one half water and one half sulfite.

3. Pry off the bag's cap using the bottle opener. Hold the opener so that you can also grab onto the cap by the sides. Apply pressure to the sides of the cap. This will secure the opener to the cap, give you more leverage when opening, and allow you to hold onto the cap after it pops off.

4. Carefully switch hands so your dominant hand now holds the neck of the bag. Pick up the bottom of the bag and slowly raise it while pointing the bag opening down into your primary fermenter and pour. Make sure the bucket doesn't slide away while pouring. If the bag is too heavy, have someone help you pick up the bottom while you hold the top. Then the hard part is over! Rinse your bag and continue to the next steps. Good luck, Paul

Pumpkin Wine Recipe

Fall is definitely here so at this time of year we start thinking about pumpkin pie, pumpkin rolls, pumpkin bread, Jack-O-Lanterns and everything "pumpkin" so how about Pumpkin Wine? You can find this and other recipes in the Winemaker's Recipe Handbook #2801.

Pumpkin Wine (makes 1 gallon)

- 4lb. Prepared pumpkin (see below)
- 7 pints warm water (use to dissolve sugar)
- 2 1/4 lbs. Sugar (adjust to achieve SG of 1.085 - 1.090)
- 2 1/2 tsp. Acid Blend
- 1/4 tsp. Tannin
- 1 tsp. Yeast Nutrient
- 1 Campden Tablet, crushed
- 1 pkg. Wine Yeast (Red Star Côte des Blancs or Lalvin 71B-1122)

Wash, cut open pumpkin, remove seeds and stringy material. Rough peel the skin and grate or mash up the meat of the pumpkin and place it into straining bag. Do not try to put in a blender - pumpkin is pretty tough. Squeeze the juice out into a primary fermenter, tie off the top of the bag and leave in fermenter. Stir in all other ingredients EXCEPT yeast. Cover primary. After 24 hours, add yeast and cover.

Stir daily, check SG and press pulp lightly. When SG reaches 1.040 (3-5 days) lightly press juice from bag. Rack into secondary and attach air lock. When fermentation is complete, (SG drops to 1.000, about 3 weeks) rack again.

If you prefer to sweeten at bottling, add 1/2 tsp. stabilizer then 1/4 lb. dissolved sugar per gallon.

Wine Drops

Wine Drops is a catch-all for various tidbits that we find interesting. This month we found a nice wine article that you may want to check out, a link for a free issue of Winemaker Magazine and a chance to tell us what you would like to see next month.

According to a recent article in Wine Spectator Magazine, red wine not only goes well with a nice meal, it helps the stomach convert potentially harmful chemicals into less dangerous molecules before they're circulated in the body resulting in better digestion. Read the entire article and more wine news at the link below;
